

Is new built a solution of last resort...

With the exception of the “antique” business, nobody is getting better by storing goods for longer times than necessary. Even logistic service providers, exception excluded, do not make their shareholders happy with “Buffer”. Following, new built as an increase to existing capacity may be an inferior solution. Only flow, moves, extra handling is creating value ... read more on www.phidan.be/cases.html

Profit and non-profit: operational optimization only marginally different...

Contrary to the general assumption, a sheltered workshop indeed takes part of the real market economy. Both types of organisations fundamentally adhere to the same dynamics. The duality of social economy / non-profit against market economy / profit, creates tension between the external economic realities and the existing internal reality that may be biased by too many social motives... read more www.phidan.be/cases.html
